Avinger Nelson came to art late in life after her mother and brother died within two years of each other. They were considered the artistic ones in the family. Avinger inherited a truck load of art supplies (literally), so she began to play. She is still playing. She went back to college to study art, graphic design, and photography. She attended classes and workshops with many artists whose work she admires.

Avinger has had three solo shows, two in Pasadena and one in Santa Monica. Her work has been in a number of juried shows in Sherman Oaks and Hollywood. She recently participated in group shows in Santa Monica and Pasadena. Her work has also appeared in model lofts in Downtown Los Angeles. She is currently a member of LA Experimental Artists, the Collage Artists of America, and the Southern California Women's Caucus For Art.
